

Mr. Donald D. Copley Jr. is the Director of Training and Personnel Development for the U.S. Army Recruiting and Retention School. He has served in this position since March 2005. As a DA Civilian, he has deployed to Afghanistan and Ukraine in support of international recruiting efforts. He is a 20-year retired Army combat veteran. His background includes Artillery, Military Police, Nuclear and Chemical Weapons, Recruiting, Training, and Training Development. He is currently working on a Ph.D. in Management with a specialization in Leadership and Organizational Change from Walden University. He holds two Master Degrees from Webster University in Human Resource Management and Human Resource Development. His undergraduate degree is a BA in Marketing. He is married and has five children.